We Often Wonder

We often wonder how much money passes the bank every day in the pockets of people that would better be earning interest in a savings account.

A great many people carry more money than they really need—and more money in the pocket is so easily spent.

Many of these people do not stop to figure up the value of small deposits made often.

Take your pencil and figure what a dollar a week—if you cannot spare more than that—would amount to with compound interest in fifteen or twenty years.

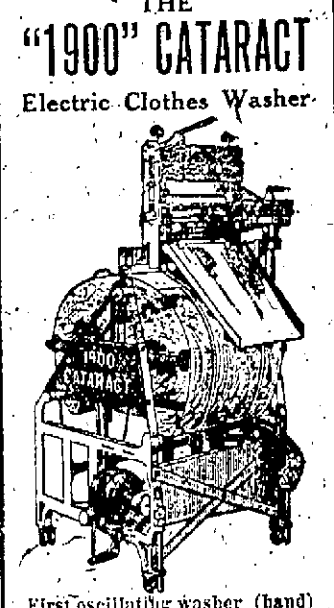

The sum is entirely too large to ignore. And yet it is not hard to make these small deposits.

Try the plan—come in Saturday night.

THE CIRCUS IS THE THING.
Rain has no terrors for the circus that opens at the Samson foundry tonight. Those in charge absolutely guarantee that the big tent will not leak. Outside all may be chill and damp and dark, but within there will be stirring scenes, warmth and a great glow which comes from the high purpose of the Barnum and Bailey circus.
For more than a century the circus has been the property of the best. Without him the older ones would have had no excuse or apology for attending. A million or more fathers have gone to the circus in the days gone by, just because they had to take the boy who was so intensely and tensely interested. It was an awful bore to father but he always led the way to the best seats.
Barnum and Bailey are opening in New York,
other circuses are having great openings elsewhere and Janesville is to be among the metropolitan surely with the circus tonight. Rain stopped baseball but it cannot stop the circus.
Get in line at the ticket wagon!

GERMANY'S CLEVER TRICK.
It was clever on the part of Germany to ask the United States to mediate between the German republic and the allies over reparations. The answer by the United States was quick and certain.
There can be no mediation. If Germany will make some definite statement as to what she will do and the allies will permit, the United States may present these proposals to the allies.
However that is not what Germany wants. She wants delay in paying the just debt of her crime.
She hesitates at the thought of her crime.
Her tactics are those of the beekeeper. Law and right mean nothing, so long as law and right may be dodged and the inevitable postponed.

THE NEXT PRIZE FIGHT. Tex Rickard pulls off is to be a full dress society affair.
AMBASSADORIAL EXPENSES.
Our late ambassador to Great Britain, the Hon.
John W. Davis, is coming home and besides his salary of $17,500 a year, he has spent nearly all of his private fortune of $150,000 living up to the job. So we are informed by newspapers as coming from the lips of Mr. Davis. This gives opportunity for the comment that we should pay more salary, provide our ambassadors with a small squad of retainers and generally put on all the tassels and feathers that we know from reading the illustrated papers are part and parcel of the imperial ambassadorial business. However, America was represented prior to the debut of Mr. Davis by Walter Page, who had no great private fortune and was a simple and beloved person who substituted brains for show, and keen human appreciation for lustre.

If we are to have social climbers for ambassadors, by all means let them do the climbing on their own private fortunes. Mr. Davis, as we remember, was a more than receptive candidate for the presidency and may have spent some of the private fortune in getting into the limelight at San Francisco. One thing we should have in the great capitals of the world where representatives live in an ambassadorial office building or residence. Besides men chosen for these high places should be selected not as social butterflies,
but like Page and Brand Whitlock, for real worth
as representatives of American ideals.

Perhaps Germany thought La Follette would have something to say about the reparations bill
when she appealed to the United States to fix a price.
In the selection of Jesse Earle as president of the board of education the members have assured themselves of an excellent presiding officer and a true friend of the public schools. The personnel of the board is of a character that gives confidence to the people of Janesville in the big task ahead of it—the building of the high school.

Gen Pershing is to be Chief of Staff and as such will be head of the active and mobile army. That will be satisfactory to all the people except perhaps the Milwaukee socialists who have refused to permit the "Welcome" sign on the city hall to burn on the night of Gen. Pershing's visit to that city.

Of course the Japs do not expect to keep Tap
but as in the case of Shantung, he will keep saying he does until a good trade is made with him giving him other advantages. That was the way with the last administration.

So far as we have been able to discover there never have been any taxes devised that were not hard to pay and were not considered both unjust
and inequitable by a large number of people.
Any person having a back yard they feel is too much of a task to clean up next week will confer
a favor by reporting it to the Cleanups committee.
It would seem from late messages and speeches
that we now have government without the super.

The Courage of the Handicapped.
By FREDERICK J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—Suppose that you lost both hands and the sight of both eyes. How would you face life? Would you feel beaten and doing for or would you have the courage to carry on to the finish?
Wounded veterans of the war furnish rich and varied opportunities to study this question of the ability of the human spirit to endure seemingly crushing disaster.
Take, for example, the case of Henry Bitter, former corporal in the United States Army. Corporal Bitter was so injured by a premature explosion of a hand grenade that he became totally blind in both eyes and had to have both hands amputated at the wrist. Yet Mr. Bitter, with the aid of training supplied by the Federal Board for Vocational Education, has got control over his physical troubles so that he has originated a formula for a patent medicine. It is well spoken of by physicians of standing, and he and his brother are traveling together selling the medicine to wholesale dealers. Mr. Bitter has more business than he can handle and is soon to incorporate.

An interesting side-light on the way a man with these defects overcomes them is given in a letter from Alan M. Nichols, a British war veteran who also suffered the loss of both hands and eyes. To Henry Bitter. The letter is quoted in part:
"Sir Arthur Pearson was speaking to me about you last week and he asked me to write you a line or two to tell you about myself. I understand from Sir Arthur that you had a similar accident
to mine, and I know you will agree the circumstances are not the most enviable; however, I think you will be able to do quite a lot if you will persevere.
"In the first place, I am wearing a pair of artificial hands which are quite useful, they are extremely light and are made of aluminum, and I can wear them all day without the least fatigue or discomfort. The movement of the hand is obtained by a shoulder movement and the hands are perfect in appearance. I can do anything I want to do without any of the audience knowing that I was wearing artificial hands. When I first became like this, I could not see anything that was likely to interest me in this earth. I never dreamed of the possibilities of a pair of artificial hands, and I assure you that I now surprise everybody, but the one I most surprise is myself."

Less than six months ago I smoked a cigarette
by having one placed in my mouth which I held in my right hand. Now I take my cigarette out of my mouth at will; if you are a smoker, you will understand what that means.
I can take my hat off, carry a walking stick, fold myself with a spoon and fork, use my handkerchief and do many other little things.
"If you will take my advice, I would like to give you a little tip about getting around by yourself. Do not entertain the idea of a walking stick for that purpose. I have found that you will have to depend entirely on the two senses—hearing and smell. When you are fitted with your artificial hands you will get about better than your other blind friends.
"Adopt a soldier-like appearance when walking, this necessarily means swinging of the arms
and you will find you very rarely bump into anything, or if you do, your hands warn you. Walk in the center of the pavement. You will find bicycles and unattended hand-barrow a nuisance at times, I have been hit by one. An apology in a whisper is sometimes sufficient when knocking into these nuisances.
"Your changes of physical exercise are naturally, greatly impaired but you will find plenty of physical exercise in Swedish Drill to keep you fit.
Swimming is also practicable and roller skating,
I find dancing good recreation. I also can ride by having the reins passed through my artificial hands and strapped to the seat.
"Since I have been like this, I have travelled quite a lot up and down the country, and have had many amusing experiences. I take considerable satisfaction in the fact that I am able to deceive 99 per cent of the people I meet."

Mr. Nichols also passes on to Mr. Bitter, tips regarding how to use a typewriter, with artificial hands he can do his own correspondence work,
a simple code by means of which his friends can guide him on the street without having to touch
him, and other practical details of a similar nature. A training school for the blind is now in session at Baltimore. Mr. Bitter took up his home in Dubuque was prepared to cheer the young man but immediately upon meeting him,
found any such efforts unnecessary and after entering into conversation with him, soon almost forgot that he was talking to a disabled man.

Another of the many interesting cases of blind
men receiving training under the Federal Board, is F. Raymond Pyle, who in 1919 was sent to "Evergreen," the Federal Cross Institute for the Blind at Baltimore. Mr. Pyle took up the study of Braille, typewriting, business correspondence, and dictaphone operating. He is now a dictaphone operator at the R. P. Andrews Paper Co., Inc., of Virginia.
In a short article on the blind at "Evergreen"
written by Mr. Pyle for publication in the Federal Board magazine, "The Vocational Summary," Mr. Pyle takes up a point of shop work and men's attitude toward the blind. He says that the fact that those physically afflicted may be quite as capable and natural individuals as the rest of humanity. Mr. Pyle says:
"Incidentally, happiness is given to the blind
as well as to the sighted, but unfortunately, many people think not and always want to pity. To pity a man without sight or to compliment him
for his courage, is the worst failing of a sighted

THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE

By Marion Rubincam

CHAPTER XV.

LEAVE-TAKING

It was rather a tired girl who climbed out of bed that cool morning of mid-October. This was the day when Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil were to leave for their trip south, and there were the usual number of details to be arranged through the trunk and the suitcase. A little sunlight, still weak and uncertain, gave promise of a clear day. The grass and the cowboys' silhouettes, the wall stood up bravely with all its lavender and pink beauty. This was the time, at the very least, that most delightful Ruth—her mother, her father, her sister—were to go to dance, made her, as she said, "want to go out and conquer the world."

But today she had little of the conqueror's spirit, whose mind was busy with the details of the last minute things in the trunk and the suitcase. Ruth reached the kitchen when she was greeted with the odor of baking bread and found her mother pulling out the rich brown loaves from the oven. "But you were going to let that go for me to do this morning," Ruth protested.

"I can do it better than you, and anyway, I'll be having a longer rest when you'll have work enough," Mrs. O'Neil answered. "At least I can bake up enough bread to last you a week." When Mrs. O'Neil came to the door, she said to Ruth:

"This afternoon, as soon as she finishes with Mrs. James' sewing, Ruth answered, taking on a big sigh, 'I'm giving her the little room next to mine, then we'll shut up your room and father's, and that will save cleaning.'"

"That's wise," Mrs. O'Neil approved. "And, Ruth, could you get a lot of apples and oranges for this winter?"

"I know," the girl answered, beginning to set the table for breakfast. "I wish I didn't worry about you so. It seems wicked to go off and leave you like this."

"Oh, Mother, don't talk that way," Ruth protested almost impatiently. "I won't be alone because Mrs. O'Neil will be with me, and I know just how much money I can draw every week to live on."

But Mrs. O'Neil continued with her sewing, and as she made up the lunch they were to eat on the train, and as she finished putting clothes into the one trunk and the big suitcase that they were to take, she remarked, coming back to the kitchen to press some wrinkles from her "best" waist:

"Fortunately, your Aunt Sarah lives in the south where it's warm," she remarked, coming back to the kitchen to press some wrinkles from her "best" waist.

"Not if you stay this winter," Ruth answered. "And you'd better if you can. Father's always been in bad weather."

Duncan O'Neil came down to breakfast plainly excited at the prospect of the trip.

"If only you were going," he said, putting an arm around Ruth as she came in from the kitchen. "I feel like such a baby, to be taking my daughter's money for a pleasure trip."

"It's a health trip, and you're to come back feeling fine," Ruth answered, adopting the soothing manner.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with a young man whom I have known for nine years. We were schoolmates. We started courting about two years ago. He is a handsome, intelligent young man, and I am of him.

Last summer we had an argument and broke up. He left town to work. About three weeks after he left he wrote and told me that he would not have left me if we hadn't fallen out. Then I answered and we have been corresponding ever since.

I am acquainted with his mother and sister. They seem to like me and invite me out to see them often. Every time he comes home he makes it his business to see me before he leaves. Every time he comes home he makes it his business to see me before he leaves.

He is coming to me to stay soon. I do not think that someone else is keeping him away. A boy friend of his told me that he was going with another girl. He says that I am the only girl he loves.

Other young men have tried to correspond, but I cannot find any interest in anyone else. I have not been happy since he has been away. Please give me some advice. CUPID.

If you have asked the young man if there is another girl, and he has denied it, I would advise you to trust him. I do not think it would be a wise plan, however, to drop all other friends until you are engaged.

"Reader and Seer": Ask for information at a bank regarding coins.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last Christmas I became engaged to a young lady. She refuses to allow me to kiss her. What could be her reason? Would you say that she does not love me?

I am 25 and she is 23. Is the difference in our ages too great? I have learned that she is a widow. She has never mentioned this. Should I? It really makes no difference in my love for her, but I do not think she should keep it a secret.

I cannot understand why the young lady refuses to let you kiss her. Since you are betrothed it would be all right to do so. Probably she loves you or she would not consent to marry you.

The difference in your ages is not too great. Yes, I would advise you to mention the fact that you know of her former marriage. Tell her that it is not going to make the least difference in your regard for her, but that you forced you when you needed her help; to the other as the dearest little playmate you ever had, until your love came.

Thrift vs. Sentiment. Dear Miss Page: It is considered proper to accept the same engagement ring from a man who was once engaged to another girl, or should he buy her another?—Dorothy Marie.

Well, that's a matter of taste! He was honest anyway, wasn't he? As a matter of sentiment, I should think the young man himself would rather have disposed of the first ring and bought you a new one. But, after all, it depends entirely upon your feelings in the matter. If you don't mind, it will be proper if you do mind, he ought to do his best to respect your feelings in the matter and accede to your wish.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions. —The Editor.

What Shall I Do?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Is He In Love? Dear Miss Page—I have kept company with a young lady for a number of months. She is much younger than I. We decided to quit and did, but the next time I was in her company I took her home. Now do you think it was from force of habit, or my affection for her?—John Smith.

Oh, the old man don't know," he answered easily. "And I knew you would feel like that. So I left out and came back to work with you."

Saturday—Ethel Russell.

Do you really want to know what I think? Well, I don't think you are in love at all. No, honestly, I don't. I mean "get married" love. You didn't tell me your age, but I think I can guess it pretty accurately, and I think that if I were you I wouldn't plan a wedding trip or wear about ring just yet.

I think if you will just go on being good companions and jolly pals with both these girls until the time will come when you will know beyond a shadow of a doubt that you are head over heels in love with one of them, and then you will look back upon these two with the tenderest sort of affection—to one as your big sister who guided and company with a young lady for a number of months. She is much younger than I. We decided to quit and did, but the next time I was in her company I took her home. Now do you think it was from force of habit, or my affection for her?—John Smith.

USEFUL BIRD CITIZENS

BY J. HAMMOND BROWN

Copyright 1920, by The International Syndicate.

WOOD THRUSH. Size—Slightly smaller than the robin, but more stockily built. Plumage—General effect is bright, cinnamon-brown above and white below, heavily spotted with black. Upperparts, bright cinnamon-brown, brightest on head, changing to olive-brown on rump. Underparts, white, thickly marked with large round black spots except on throat and middle of belly.

Range—Breeds throughout the eastern states from lower New England to Virginia and Kentucky. Winters from Mexico into Costa Rica.

A patriotic among the birds! Never hurried, never flustered, each movement stamped with sedate deliberation, the Wood Thrush will sing his song or politely angle worm with all the dignity that one might expect from the blue-blooded gentry of the avian tree.

It is at dusk that the male is most generous with his melodious song that possesses the full tone of an organ, the clearness of a flute and vibrates with all the sweetness of a bell. One must be quite near to gain the full pleasure from this melodious song, for he is adept in the dimmest of melodies, of melody are joined by low flute-like trills.

Master Wood Thrush does not have the dangerous habit of singing on or near the nest. Rather, the very sweetness of his music is used to entice you away from the small sapling, in a crotch of which his grassy cup is placed.

As its name implies, once upon a time the Wood Thrush was a dweller of the glades, like his cousin, the Hermit Thrush, but long protection at the hands of man has changed this nesting habit over a large section of the country and they are almost as common neighbors in the garden and back lawn as Robin or Wren.

They are especially fond of using bits of cloth in the weaving of their rather inartistic nest and a sure way to bribe them into setting up housekeeping in one of the shade trees on your lawn is to place out bits and strips of cloth for their convenience in the spring.

Insects and wild berries form the food and they take no return toll of cultivated grain, although they might on occasion peck at a berry or two in the garden, but one would have to be hard-hearted indeed to begrudge your lawn its share of their day's labor and evening hymn.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS TO SPECIALIZE ON HOME INDUSTRIES

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. Madison—(Continued from page 1.) Education in Wisconsin through vocational departments organized with reference to the manufacturing industry of the district, is recommended by the state board of education in a comprehensive program issued.

Duplicated training with overlapping of courses, such as results from the present system of technical training in vocational schools, will be eliminated under the proposed plan, the report states. Each school would specialize its instruction according to the industrial interests of the locality, building up schools for each occupation in the section where the facilities for training are available.

The Big Town Round Up

As Clay looked around, it struck him that the personnel of this gambling-dens was a singularly depressing one. All told there were not a dozen respectable looking people in the room. Most of those present were dregs of life, the failures of a great city washed up by the tide. Some were pallid, haggard, wretched, clinging to the verge of prosperity that had once been theirs. Others were hard-faced ruffians from the underworld. Not a few bore the marks of the drug victim. All of these playing had a number of the same suspicion. They knew that if they risked their money the house would rob them. Yet they played. Brownfield bought a small stock of chips at the roulette table. "You take a whirl at the wheel?" he asked Lindsay.

"Thanks, no, I believe not," his guest answered.

The Westerner was a bit disgusted at this. He was of opinion that Lindsay had a soft mark on him. "Do you think I'm a soft mark?" he wondered. "If it is what, he calls his life I've had more than enough already."

His disgust was shared by the clubman. Brownfield had never been in such a dive before. His gambling had been done in gilded luxury. While he touched shoulders with the money crew his nostrils were excited with fastidious disdain. He played, but his interest was not in the wheel. Durand had promised that there would be women and that one of them should be bribed to make a claim upon Clay at the proper moment. He had an unhappy feeling that the gang politician had thrown him down in this. "I see, what did that mean?" Had Durand some card up his sleeve? Was he using him as a cat-in-the-hat in his own chestnuts?

Clarendon Brownfield began to weaken. He and Clay were the only two men in the room in evening clothes. His questing eye fell on the tough-looking face that bore his fears no reassurance. Any one or all of them might be agents of Durand.

He showed all of his chips out, putting half of them on a number eight and the rest on seventeen. His object was to lose his stock immediately and be free to go. To his annoyance the wheeling ball slipped into the pocket labeled eight.

"Let's go out of this hole," he said to Lindsay in a low voice. "I don't like it."

"Suits me," agreed the other.

As Brownfield was cashing his chips Clay came rigidly to attention. "Two men had just come into the room. One of them was 'Slim' Jim. The other was 'Gorilla' Dave. As yet they had not seen him. He did not look at them, but at his host. There was a question in his mind he wanted asked. The clubman gave a nod over both the newcomers without the least sign of recognition.

"I didn't know what this joint was like, or I'd never have brought you," apologized Clarendon. "A friend of mine told me about it. He's got a queer fancy if he likes this kind of place."

Clay acquiesced Brownfield of conspiracy must have been told here by Durand's men. His host had

"I could not work at all and had to take to my bed with a high fever due to intestinal indigestion, gases in my stomach and pain in my right side. I had spent my last cent for doctors and medicine, which gave me no relief. I was in despair. A lodge brother gave me a bottle of Dr. Williams' Wonderful Remedy, and the first dose relieved me. Thanks to this medicine, I am now in the best of health. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrh, that mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Dollar Ideas

Do you know that there are any number of doctors, dentists, lawyers and even merchants about town who are often in need of a messenger for their errands? Why not, must call upon some expensive service?

"Take a Saturday off, of a few afternoons after school, and visit these men to sell their trade. Carry a letter of recommendation from your Sunday school teacher or minister. Tell the men that you want to handle their errands during your spare vacation, and that your price will be a fair one."

Leave a card with your name, the name of your business, the name of Brown's Messenger Service, for instance, your address, and a telephone number by which you can be reached any time during the day.

A week or so later visit the messenger again, but to refresh his memory. Be a live wire and let him know it.

If business gets too rushed for you to handle it alone, take a couple of your pals in partnership, and

Dinner Stories

A milkman in a country town was brought before the local court to answer a charge of adulteration.

"You are charged," said the magistrate, "with selling adulterated milk. Have you anything to say in answer to the charge?"

"Well, your honor," replied the milkman, "the night before it was raining hard and the only cause I can give is the cow must have got wet through."

There is a story of an old Irish barrister who pleaded for a client who had bought a public house and found that the licensee had just been taken away.

"I'll appeal to you for my unfortunate client who bought this public house," he said. "What is it now but the corpse of a public house with the living, breathing spirit of the licensee taken away from it?"

Harry "Snub" Pollard says that "it's all in the way that you look at a thing." Which means that the same thing can be a new story. A little colored boy, son of one of the "extraneous" men, had been caught "borrowing" a dime from the pocket of his father's trousers while swinging from a peg in the dressing room of a hotel. "Shame on you, stealing the dime from your father's pocket!" said the father. "Next time you'll be in jail."

A teacher had told a class of juvenile pupils that Milton, the poet, was blind. The next day she asked if any of them could remember what Milton's great affliction was. "Yes'm," replied one little fellow; "he was a poet."

ANYBODY THAT LEAVES HIS BRAINS

Opening Game Called Off, Wet Grounds; Play Saturday

Copyright 1920 by Geo. McManus.

OLD MAN WEATHER STOPS BIG PLANS; VISITORS ARRIVE

No game! The announcement was given out at noon Friday by Manager George Terring of the Tractors that prevailing weather conditions stopped all chances of opening the Milwaukee Lake shore club. Slippery, slimy soil with puddles of water out on the ball park made it useless to attempt to call the battle. Heavy fog clouds threatened a dangerous delay any minute, to make conditions worse.

Plans Unchanged.
Every hope is held that Old Sol will brighten things to enable the Tractors to get under way at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Rain insurance looked mighty good Friday to the officials of the local club.

Lange's Milwaukee crew is on deck. They arrived here shortly before noon, ready for the fray.
The outlook is for a big crowd Saturday. Fans kept the telephone busy Friday morning, anxiously inquiring about the game.

Three vets of the Red Sox team, Pitcher Sam Jones (left), Shortstop Ernie Scott (right) and Pitcher Joe Bush, below.

If the Boston Red Sox give the other American League clubs a battle this season, hand the credit to Hughie Duffy, new manager. Frazee has given him little new material. John Collins and Nemo Liebold are the only acquisitions of importance. This pair gives him a good outfield, with a couple of good gardeners for emergency.

Heavy Advance Sale of Tickets to Elks' Fights

Advance sale of pastebards for the Elks' fight night next Wednesday, according to announcement of the club Friday. With the long period since the last show, the fight fans hereabouts are about starving for the meat menu. Twelve 5¢ tickets are featuring the sale instead of singles and doubles as at the previous entertainment. The attendance of women is expected to be greater than before.

A local fan, just returned from Kalamazoo, saw Johnny Lewis, who is matched in the big wind-up with Omaha "Kid" Schaefer, twice Saturday afternoon at 10 rounds. He declares that Lewis exhibited two wicked mites, holding the sailor to a draw. Having seen Schaefer battle here last month with his short jab and wicked left, he expects a whirling mill.

The lovers of the scientific boxing are carefully awaiting the clash between Johnny Hagen and Frankie Jumath. This is going to be a scientific fight, according to all indications, but footwork will be coupled with a rain of flying fists.

Speed of Race Horses Believed Near the Limit

Lexington, Ky.—The limit in speed of trotting and running horses has almost been reached, according to Prof. R. Anderson of the Animal Husbandry department of the Kentucky State College of Agriculture. In his opinion, the future will be much slower than at any time in the past.

Prof. Anderson has been making a special study of record-holding "Standard-bred" trotters and "Thoroughbred" runners, and his conclusions on a study of records and histories of the animals covering a period of more than 50 years.

Same Records.
In 60 years, the record of three-year-old trotters has been lowered from 2:40 to 2:02 1/2, a reduction of 37 1/2 seconds. Professor Anderson finds, in 18 years the American record of running horses over a distance of one mile has been lowered from 1:42 1/2 to 1:34 1/2, a reduction of six and four-fifths seconds. Neither breed has failed to make improvement during a generation, according to Prof. Anderson, and in some cases improvement has been so rapid that many new records have been made in the life of a single horse.

The gradual improvement in the speed of trotting horses, according to Prof. Anderson, is shown clearly by the records of three-year-olds and the all-time records of the breed. These are as follows:

Three Year Olds.

The most remarkable thing about the running records, Prof. Anderson says, is the fact that Man O'War, a three-year-old, holds the record for all times of thoroughbred horses in that race.

SPORTING BRIEFS

Plans for a dual track meet between the university of California and Yale at Yale May 21, were abandoned at Berkeley, Calif., Friday, when it was learned that no date had been set.

Members of the American Zelo team are completing their training here for the Northern Amateur, the International cup matches at Burlington, in June, and it is doubtful if they will ever have a harder working team of polo players than this aggregation.

The Northern Amateur will be held here July 22, 23 and the Duluth boys' club university of Wisconsin meet on July 25. It was announced Friday by the Duluth Boat Club.

BETTER MIRRORS OBTAINABLE SAY FURNITURE MEN

Glass for furniture is obtainable now at lower prices and larger amounts than in recent years, according to Janesville furniture dealers. As a direct result the new articles of furniture have larger and better mirrors.

During the peak of high automobile production, the automobile factories practically had a monopoly on the glass industry. The auto corporations leased most of the glass works taking their entire output for wind shields and for enclosed cars. As a result glass rose to unheard of prices. But now it is being produced in large quantities and the price is falling.

Also the building industry, at its height a year ago, demanded a great amount of glass.

"There is apparently sufficient glass now on the market," stated John W. Van Reym, manager of Kimball's store Thursday. "The difference is noticeable in the furniture bought last year and that being purchased at the present time. Before there was a decided limit of glass and now the mirrors are larger and of better quality."

Janesville furniture dealers all declare that prices have dropped from 20 to 40 percent and all prices are reasonable, based on real values. They agree that furniture will not ever be as low in price as during the pre-war period for the manufacturers do not desire the cheap labor prices which then existed.

Boilermakers Prepare for Football Season

Lafayette, Ind.—William H. Dietz, new coach of the Purdue University football team, has started spring practice at the institution with a squad of 40 men. Athletic authorities at Purdue look forward to a successful football season next fall under Dietz's direction. Dietz gained fame as a player on the Carlisle team from 1907 to 1911. Following his graduation he was retained at his alma mater as assistant coach to Glenn Warner. In 1919 he went to Washington State as football coach and won the coast championship in that year. In 1920 he coached the Navy Island team and again won the coast title.

Ventilation Orders to Be Gone Over at Hearing

Madison.—Hearing will be held April 27 in Milwaukee to consider revision of the orders governing ventilation and general sanitation. The industrial commission announced. The orders would require employers to provide ventilating systems where the condition of the air was such as to be obnoxious or injurious to the health. Hearing will also be conducted by the commission on Friday upon the advisability of modifying the orders governing fireproof motion picture booths whenever inflammable films are used. Manufacturers of all-metal machines have petitioned the commission against enforcement of the order, stating that it is not necessary with the metal machines.
